THOR GUARD WEATHER

U.S. SENIOR WOMEN'S AMATEUR 2018 ORCHID ISLAND

USGA®

SUNDAY, OCTOBER 7, 2018 – 7 AM WEATHER FORECAST

Windier conditions along with a more active weather pattern will begin to take shape today. Sun will mix with clouds and there will be a few showers and sprinkles moving through at any point today. The chance for thunder is low, at 20 percent, mostly after 10 a.m. Today's high will reach 88, and winds will be out of the east at 5-10 mph with a few gusts around 20 mph, higher in and near any showers. If it rains, amounts should be around a tenth of an inch or so. Tonight will remain breezy and warm with a few showers in the area, as the low reaches 78. Next week will certainly be more unsettled and windier with increasing chances for showers Monday and Tuesday, with wind gusts in the 20-25 mph range each day as daytime stay in the upper 80s. Rainfall amounts could reach an inch in any heavier bands of rain each day. Wednesday through Friday remain breezy with scattered locally heavy showers and isolated thunderstorms, amounting to up to 2 inches in some parts of the Treasure Coast, while winds becoming more southerly as tropical cyclone "Michael" moves northeast across the Panhandle of Florida then through the Carolinas.
