“I think there was a part in the middle of the round where I bogeyed back to back par-3s with some solid putts, but they just didn’t drop. I was able to fight back. My goal was to just birdie one par-5. Yesterday I had not. So to birdie both of them on the back side and be able to come back and be two under and back to even that gives me a lot of confidence going into match play.”

“I have never done that and in events like this your overall goal is to win, but you also have to set person goals to keep yourself settled. So for me after shooting what I shot yesterday my goal was to just come out and shoot another par round. I was very happy to do so. I was two under at one point and got back to even and maybe make a statement.”

“I’ve been in these events for so long that anything can happen. You want to peak at the right moment. The thing I can say about this round is that I definitely left some out there. I’m not peaking yet. I’m sure Shannon and Kelsey would say the same thing. If we all peak at the same time along with other competitors out there it can be one heck of a tournament and I’m excited for it.”
