

WEDNESDAY, JULY 12th, 2023 – 6 AM WEATHER FORECAST

A muggy, but nice morning ahead of us with sunshine beginning to push through the morning clouds. High clouds will try to filter in from the northwest and mix in with a handful of lower clouds throughout the day. Staying with the trend of dodging showers to our south overnight, we should be mostly dry today other than the slight 20% chance for a pop-up shower or rumble of thunder. Light winds through the morning will aid in warming our temperatures in the mid to upper 80s by lunchtime with a high in the low 90s. It is going to be hot today with the heat index trying to climb into the upper 90s at times this afternoon. Winds will be well manageable later in the day, but will pick up out of the southwest, blessing us with a nice little breeze. Let's have another amazing and dry day of golf and crown our champions! Late week and into the weekend will have a continual warm up and increasing chances for showers and more storms.
