

THURSDAY, JULY 17, 2025 – 6 AM WEATHER FORECAST

A similar state of weather is expected Thursday. You can expect hot afternoon temperatures, a steady southerly breeze, and a chance for a late afternoon/evening thunderstorm. The pattern we are stuck in has a lot of moisture, but there is limited focus on where it will develop across the region. Thus, a true “pop up” cell would have to hit us directly, and this is less likely to occur. The trend will continue through the weekend where any given day may have a cell nearby, but you can otherwise expect heat and humidity with modest wind speeds. Today, the wind stems out of the south, pumping even more moisture into the air. Heat indices will reach the triple digits with ease – stay hydrated out there!
