

FRIDAY, JULY 18, 2025 – 6 AM WEATHER FORECAST

The atmosphere is doing its best to repress thunderstorm development. Heat will dominate the forecast, with just the slight risk of an afternoon or evening cell. The peak timeframe is 3 to 7 PM, but it would be statistically unlucky to take a direct hit. The trend will continue through the weekend. You can certainly expect thick morning humidity and afternoon heat. A slight breeze will help, with a magnitude of 5 to 10 mph each afternoon, though a bit stronger on Saturday. The direction of the breeze won't really help, because it is stemming from humid tropical waters. Heat indices will reach the triple digits with ease – settling into the 100 to 105 range each afternoon. Stay hydrated out there!
