

SUNDAY, SEPTEMBER 10, 2023 – 6 AM WEATHER FORECAST

Today is the day to be concerned about heavy rain. While thundershowers are likely to happen at some point today, the hourly forecast is not guaranteeing any particular time frame. In other words, prepare for the wet, and hope for the best. The timeframe of most likely rainfall is actually this morning, from 8 to 11 AM. Amounts of rain will vary considerably, with a best guess of 0.50 to 1.25 inches. Any torrential downpours that form could produce amounts near 2.5 inches extremely efficiently. Monday looks to provide an additional round of shower activity, before we welcome a brief reprieve Tuesday morning. This reprieve lasts through Tuesday afternoon, before yet another frontal system disturbs us heading into Tuesday night and Wednesday. A dry, cool Thursday is in store to end a very tough week!
