

SUNDAY, OCTOBER 1st, 2023 – 6 AM WEATHER FORECAST

Fall is in the air, but so is some smoke as our air quality will be a tad lower and unhealthy for today. We will start off with some morning cloud cover and temperatures right in the mid 60s before we begin to clear out over the course of the day. Winds will show much less strength today, but can provide some breeze as we work our way in the afternoon. The afternoon high only hitting near 80 degrees should be much of change from the heat we have experienced the past week, so relish this brief cool down. We will pick up a few more clouds later this evening and overnight with a cool 60 degree low temperature. Another not so noteworthy chance for a sprinkle moving into Monday morning, otherwise we will look to strip most clouds and have a similar day to Sunday. An absolutely gorgeous showing from mother nature to round off the Championship with more sun, dry conditions and temperatures rebounding back near average for this time of year.
