

MONDAY, AUGUST 14, 2023 – 6 AM WEATHER FORECAST

Clear skies earlier this morning have allowed some clouds to filter back in giving us a beautiful sunrise. Look for the clouds to mix with our sunshine the first few hours this morning, however the trend as we head towards lunchtime into this afternoon is for increasing sunshine. Sunny skies this afternoon will make it feel much warmer after starting off in the 50s, we'll end up in the mid to high 70s later on today. East and northeast winds will pick up this afternoon to become breezy at times, but not as strong as yesterday. Tonight will be the coolest night with lows aiming towards 50 degrees, then we'll turn things around quickly by Tuesday afternoon with highs climbing through the 80s getting close to 90 degrees. Sunshine Tuesday morning will have some mountain clouds with only a 20% risk of anything on radar. Showers and storms will be a higher threat on Wednesday as we appear to keep highs above average the remainder of the Championship.
