

TUESDAY, JUNE 27th, 2023 - 5 AM U.S. Senior Open Weather Forecast

Tuesday looks to mark the coolest start of the week as with temperature in the mid 50s quickly warming up as the sun makes its first appearance in two days pushing highs this afternoon back just above normal into the low 80s. Strong winds that we saw throughout the day Monday will remain out of the NW on Tuesday but continue to taper off throughout the becoming light and variable overnight as flow shifts back over to the SE Wednesday morning. Wildfire smoke Canada brought down by the shift in strong winds on Monday will stay with us throughout the day today providing the only blemish in what otherwise looks to be a fairly good weather day for practice rounds. A warmer Tuesday means a slightly warmer start to things tomorrow with lows just making their way into the upper 50s before once again heating up quickly under a mixture of sunshine and clouds with highs on Wednesday working their way back near 80 degrees. The chance for showers and storms remain in the forecast as the sun begins to set tomorrow lasting into early Thursday morning with any electricity looking to clear out before play begins on Thursday.
