

LIBERTY CORNER, N.J. (Feb. 14, 2023) – The United States Golf Association (USGA) today announced qualifying sites for the 78th U.S. Women's Open Championship, to be held at Pebble Beach (Calif.) Golf Links, from July 6-9. Pebble Beach will host its first U.S. Women's Open and 14th USGA championship.

Conducted over 36 holes, qualifying will be held at 23 sites across the United States, plus Canada, Japan and Belgium between May 9 and June 7. Online entry applications open on Wednesday, Feb. 15, and will continue through Wednesday, May 3, at 5 p.m. EDT (champs.usga.org).

"The USGA is excited to bring the U.S. Women's Open and the world's greatest female players to Pebble Beach Golf Links, one of America's iconic and treasured courses," said USGA Chief Championships Officer John Bodenhamer. "The qualifying process is valued greatly by the USGA and we thank Allied Golf Associations throughout the United States and the international golf community who provide thousands of golfers the opportunity to compete for a place in the championship field."

Two of the qualifiers will be held at clubs that have previously hosted the U.S. Women's Open. Starmount Forest Country Club, in Greensboro, N.C., is where Betty Jameson claimed the 1947 championship. Jameson had previously won the 1940 U.S. Women's Amateur at Pebble Beach. Betsy Rawls won the first of her four Women's Open titles in 1951 at Druid Hills Golf Club. The Atlanta, Ga., club will host qualifying for the sixth time since 2011.

Bradenton (Fla.) Country Club and OGA Golf Course, in Woodburn, Ore., will each host Women's Open qualifying for the sixth time. Shannopin Country Club, in Pittsburgh, Pa.; Oahu Country Club, in Honolulu, Hawaii; and Belle Haven Country Club, in Alexandria, Va., will each welcome qualifying fields for a fourth time.

Gainey Ranch Golf Club, in Scottsdale, Ariz.; Boso Country Club, in Chiba Prefecture, Japan; and Ohio State University Golf Club, in Columbus, Ohio, are among a group of six clubs that are hosting for the second consecutive year. Bronte Law, of England, qualified at Gainey Ranch last year and went on to tie for sixth, her best U.S. Women's Open finish. Saki Baba, who qualified in Japan and tied for 49th last year, would go on to win the 2022 U.S. Women's Amateur at Chambers Bay in convincing style.

California has the most qualifying sites with four. Three U.S. Women's Open qualifiers are scheduled in Florida, while Texas will host two qualifiers. There are qualifying sites in 17 states.

Birdie Kim (2005) is the last player to win the U.S. Women's Open after advancing through qualifying. In 2022, 22 golfers who played in a qualifier made the 36-hole cut in the Women's Open at Pine Needles Lodge and Golf Club.

In 2023, the U.S. Women's Open and U.S. Open (The Los Angeles Country Club) will be held in the same state for the fourth time. It also happened in 1982, 2014 and 2021. Two of the past three instances were also in California (2014 marked the unprecedented back-to-back championships on Pinehurst No. 2). To be eligible for the Women's Open, a player must have a Handicap Index® not exceeding 2.4 or be a professional.

The USGA accepted a record total of 1,874 entries for the 2022 U.S. Women's Open at Pine Needles Lodge & G.C., in Southern Pines, N.C. The previous record was established in 2015 when 1,873 filed entries for the championship at Lancaster (Pa.) Country Club, which will also be the host site for the 2024 championship.

Pebble Beach Golf Links has previously hosted six U.S. Opens (1972, 1982, 1992, 2000, 2010, 2019), five U.S. Amateurs (1929, 1947, 1961, 1999, 2018) and two U.S. Women's Amateurs (1940, 1948).

About the USGA

The USGA is a nonprofit organization that celebrates, serves and advances the game of golf. Founded in 1894, we conduct many of golf's premier professional and amateur championships, including the U.S. Open and U.S. Women's Open. With The R&A, we govern the sport via a global set of playing, equipment, handicapping and amateur status rules. The USGA campus in Liberty Corner, New Jersey, is home to the Association's Research and Test Center, where science and innovation are fueling a healthy and sustainable game for the future. The campus is also home to the USGA Golf Museum, where we honor the game by curating the world's most comprehensive archive of golf artifacts. To learn more, visit usga.org.
