

LIBERTY CORNER, N.J., (Sept. 24, 2024) - The United States Golf Association (USGA) today announced that Erin Hills, in Erin, Wis., one of America's premier daily-fee golf courses, has been selected to host five USGA amateur championships over the next 15 years. These championships come in addition to the 2025 U.S. Women's Open Presented by Ally, which will be held May 28-June 1. Added to the slate of upcoming championships are the:

- 2027 U.S. Amateur Four-Ball
- 2030 U.S. Women's Amateur Four-Ball
- 2033 U.S. Women's Amateur
- 2035 U.S. Amateur
- 2039 U.S. Junior Amateur

"Erin Hills has proven itself as an exceptional venue for USGA championships, and we are thrilled to bring these five events to this iconic course," said Mark Hill, managing director, Championships. "The natural beauty and challenging layout of Erin Hills make it the perfect stage for golfers to showcase their talent and determination."

Erin Hills joins a list of 13 other courses that have hosted or will host the U.S. Open, U.S. Women's Open, U.S. Amateur and U.S. Women's Amateur. The course played host to the first U.S. Open in the state of Wisconsin in 2017 when Brooks Koepka won the first of his two consecutive titles. Erin Hills also was the site of the 2011 U.S. Amateur, where Kelly Kraft defeated Patrick Cantlay, 2 up, in the 36-hole final.

"We're excited to continue our partnership with the USGA by hosting these five championships," said Andy Ziegler, owner of Erin Hills. "We strongly believe in supporting and celebrating amateur golf, and these championships do exactly that."

Next May's U.S. Women's Open will be the fifth USGA championship conducted at Erin Hills. The venue was the site of the 2008 U.S. Women's Amateur Public Links, when Tiffany Joh won the second of her two titles with a 2-and-1 victory over Jennifer Song. In September 2022, Matthew McClean won an all-Irish final when he edged out Hugh Foley to win the U.S. Mid-Amateur Championship.

Located 35 miles northwest of Milwaukee in the Kettle Moraine region, Erin Hills was designed by Dr. Michael Hurdzan, Dana Fry and Ron Whitten. The public facility opened for play in 2006.

There have been 17 USGA championships contested in Wisconsin through the 2024 season. This will be the first time either of the USGA's Four-Ball Championships, which debuted in 2015, will be held in Wisconsin. It also marks the first time the U.S. Women's Amateur will be held in the Badger State.

About the USGA

The USGA is a mission-based golf organization whose purpose is to unify the golf community through handicapping and grassroots programs; to showcase the game's best talent through the U.S. Open, U.S. Women's Open Presented by Ally and 13 other national championships and our museum; to provide unbiased global governance with The R&A through the playing, equipment and Amateur Status rules; and to advance issues important to golf's future, with a focus on driving sustainability, accessibility and inclusion. As a nonprofit association, our work and our team are driven to act for the good of the game. For more, visit usga.org

For further information: Julia Pine, USGA Communications, jpine@usga.org

<https://mediacenter.usga.org/press-releases?item=123098>