

LIBERTY CORNER, N.J. (Oct. 7, 2024) – The USGA announced today that Farmington Country Club, in Charlottesville, Va., has been selected as the host site for the 2027 U.S. Women’s Amateur Four-Ball Championship. This will be the first USGA championship hosted by Farmington since the 1993 U.S. Senior Amateur.

“We are excited to return to Farmington Country Club, which not only has a fantastic golf course, but a supportive and engaged membership,” said Mark Hill, USGA managing director, championships. “We are appreciative of the invitation and look forward to welcoming some of the best female amateurs from around the world.”

Nestled in the foothills of central Virginia's Blue Ridge Mountains, Farmington Country Club is steeped in a history stretching over 200 years. Portions of the Clubhouse, dating back to 1803, were designed by Thomas Jefferson. The club's Main Course, designed by Fred Findlay in 1927, features 18 holes and a par 70. The club also features a 10-hole East Course, designed by Coore & Crenshaw in 2016.

“Farmington Country Club is honored to host the 2027 US Women’s Amateur Four-Ball. Historically, Farmington has played a significant role in supporting women’s golf in Virginia, and we are very proud to once again partner with the USGA to provide a world-class championship venue. On behalf of all the members of Farmington, we are excited to welcome the world’s best female amateurs to our great club,” said Joe Krenn, Chief Executive Officer and General Manager of Farmington Country Club.

There have been 21 USGA championships contested in the state of Virginia through the 2024 season, including the 43rd U.S. Mid-Amateur just last month at Kinloch Golf Club in Midlothian. The Homestead, located in Hot Springs, has hosted the most USGA championships in the Old Dominion state, including the 1966 Curtis Cup and 1967 U.S. Women’s Open. It will also host next year’s U.S. Senior Women’s Amateur.

The U.S. Women’s Amateur Four-Ball is open to female amateur golfers of all ages. Each member of the side must have a USGA Handicap Index® of 14.4 or lower. A starting field of 128 players, or 64 sides, will compete in two rounds of stroke play before the field is cut to the top 32 sides for match play. Five 18-hole rounds of match play will determine the finalists, who will square off in an 18-hole championship match.

The 2024 U.S. Women’s Amateur Four-Ball was held at Oak Hills Country Club in San Antonio, Texas, and was won by Sarah Lim and U.S. National Junior Team member Asterisk Talley, who went on to finish runner-up in both the U.S. Girls’ Junior at El Caballero Country Club and the U.S. Women’s Amateur at Southern Hills Country Club.

Upcoming USGA Championships in Virginia

2025 U.S. Senior Women's Amateur Championship, The Omni Homestead Resort

2027 U.S. Women's Amateur Four-Ball, Farmington Country Club

2029 U.S. Senior Amateur, The Omni Homestead Resort

About the USGA

The USGA is a mission-based golf organization whose purpose is to unify the golf community through handicapping and grassroots programs; to showcase the game's best talent through the U.S. Open, U.S. Women's Open Presented by Ally and 13 other national championships and our museum; to provide unbiased global governance with The R&A through the playing, equipment and Amateur Status rules; and to advance issues important to golf's future, with a focus on driving sustainability, accessibility and inclusion. As a nonprofit association, our work and our team are driven to act for the good of the game. For more, visit usga.org.

For further information: Adrian Godoy, USGA Communications, agodoy@usga.org

<https://mediacenter.usga.org/press-releases?item=123100>