Entrants will play in girls' and boys' divisions in four age categories, with scoring centered around golf's three fundamental skills – driving, chipping and putting.

Top performers at the local level will advance through subregional and regional qualifiers in July/August and September/October, respectively. From these qualifiers, 80 finalists – 40 boys and 40 girls – will earn an invitation to compete in the National Finals at Augusta National Golf Club on Sunday, April 4, the eve of the 2021 Masters Tournament. Qualifiers are conducted by all 41 sections of the PGA of America across the country.

"It's exciting to see Drive, Chip and Putt continue to grow the game and inspire juniors everywhere to love and play it," said Mark Newell, USGA president. "As a founding partner of the program, we're able to witness, firsthand, the level of passion that junior golfers have and to know that the future of the game is in good hands."

"Drive, Chip and Putt is a unique and exciting opportunity for participants of all skill levels to get started in the game," said Fred Ridley, Chairman of Augusta National Golf Club and the Masters Tournament. "Our partnership with the USGA and PGA of America is rooted in the shared mission of engaging golf's next generation, and each year, we are encouraged by the smiles we see as boys and girls have fun playing a game we hope they enjoy for the rest of their lives."

"The PGA of America is proud of the great tradition that Drive, Chip and Putt has become through our longstanding partnership with both the USGA and the Masters Tournament," said PGA President Suzy Whaley, PGA. "Each year, Drive, Chip and Putt serves as a special opportunity for girls and boys to showcase their golf skills and their passion for the game in a fun and welcoming environment. We're excited that PGA Professionals will help inspire the next generation to pursue a lifetime of enjoyment through the game of golf, as we host qualifying events across each of our 41 PGA Sections nationwide."
