

This is the 75th U.S. Women's Open Championship and the second in the state of Texas. Colonial Country Club in Fort Worth hosted the 1991 U.S. Women's Open when Meg Mallon defeated Pat Bradley by two strokes to win her first of two U.S. Women's Open titles.

The first U.S. Women's Open, played at Spokane (Wash.) Country Club in 1946 and won by Patty Berg, was the only one conducted at match play. The Women's Professional Golfers Association (WPGA) conducted the Women's Open until 1949, when the newly formed Ladies Professional Golf Association (LPGA) took over operation of the championship. The LPGA ran the Women's Open for four years, but in 1953 asked the United States Golf Association (USGA) to conduct the championship, which it has done ever since.

The youngest winner of the U.S. Women's Open is Inbee Park, who won the 2008 championship at age 19 years, 11 months and 17 days. Babe Didrikson Zaharias, who won the 1954 Women's Open at age 43 years and 7 days, is the oldest winner.

In 1967, Catherine Lacoste, of France, the daughter of hall-of-fame tennis player Rene Lacoste and 1927 British Ladies Amateur champion Simone Thion de la Chaume, became the only amateur to win the U.S. Women's Open. Seven other amateurs, most recently Hye-Jin Choi in 2017, have had runner-up or co-runner-up finishes.

Among the 156 golfers in the 2020 U.S. Women's Open, there are:

, 22, of Kapolei, Hawaii, is competing in her third U.S. Women's Open. The University of Southern California fifth-year senior was named a first-team All-American in 2019-20 and led a talented USC team with a 71.57 stroke average. In 2008, Corpuz surpassed Michelle Wie as the youngest qualifier in U.S. Women's Amateur Public Links history at 10 years, 3 months and 9 days. Earlier this summer, she was the runner-up to Rachel Kuehn in the Women's North & South Amateur at Pinehurst No. 2, losing in 19 holes. Corpuz attended the Punahou School in Honolulu, the same high school that produced Wie and President Barack Obama.

, 20, of Sweden, is a sophomore at Louisiana State University. She became the first player in program history to earn Southeastern Conference Player of the Year and Freshman of the Year honors in the same season. She has earned two collegiate victories and opened the 2020-21 season by finishing second in the Blessings Invitational, an event that featured all 14 SEC teams.

, 21, of Cary, N.C., was a quarterfinalist at the U.S. Women's Amateur this August. A senior at Wake Forest University, she is a three-time All-American and has earned five individual titles with the Deacons. She is competing in her second U.S. Women's Open (2018, Shoal Creek). In 2019, she claimed the individual gold medal at the Pan American Games in Lima, Peru, and won a mixed team gold medal with USA teammates Rose Zhang, Stewart Hagestad and Brandon Wu.

, 21, of France, is a senior at the University of Texas. Laisne was the Big 12 individual champion and player of the year in 2019 for the Longhorns. The Paris native won two events on the LET Access Series in three starts this fall. She finished third in the 2020 European Ladies' Amateur Championship, an event she won in 2017.

, 23, of Northern Ireland, was a member of the 2016 and 2018 GB&I Curtis Cup Teams. Mehaffey, a four-time All-American at Arizona State University, returned for a fifth year of eligibility with the Sun Devils this fall. She will be playing in her third professional major of the year after missing the cut in the AIG Women's Open in August at Royal Troon and tying for 74th place at the ANA Inspiration in September.

, 22, of Austin, Texas, is the top-ranked amateur in Texas and a University of Texas senior. Papp won a USGA title in 2016 when she teamed with Hailee Cooper at the U.S. Women's Amateur Four-Ball Championship. She is a three-time All-American with the Longhorns and was named 2018 Big 12 Player of the Year and Freshman of the Year.

, 20, of France, is a sophomore at the University of South Carolina competing in her first U.S. Women's Open. In October, Roussin-Bouchard won the individual title at The Ally by five strokes at 1999 U.S. Women's Open venue Old Waverly Golf Club in West Point, Miss., while leading South Carolina to a seven-stroke team victory. She has two individual titles and five top-five finishes in nine career starts for the Gamecocks.

, 20, of Australia, nearly won back-to-back U.S. Women's Amateur championships this August when she fell short in the final match to Rose Zhang in 38 holes. Ruffels won the 2019 U.S. Women's Amateur title at Old Waverly Golf Club in West Point, Miss., becoming the first Australian to win the championship. Ruffels, a junior at USC, was a second-team All-American as a sophomore, earning an individual title at the Bruin Wave Invitational. Her older brother, Ryan Ruffels, plays on the Korn Ferry Tour. Ruffels is the daughter of former University of Southern California women's tennis national champion Anna-Maria Fernandez and Ray Ruffels, a highly successful professional tennis player who for some time played mixed doubles with Hall of Famer Billie Jean King. This will be Gabriela's third start in a major championship this year: she missed the cut by one stroke at the AIG Women's Open and finished T-15 at the ANA Inspiration.

, 17, of Irvine, Calif., won the 2020 U.S. Women's Amateur Championship this August, which earned her a spot in the 2021 U.S. Women's Open at The Olympic Club in San Francisco. Her incredible 2020 season also includes three American Junior Golf Association individual titles and an 11th-place finish and low-amateur honors in the ANA Inspiration in September. Zhang was awarded the McCormack Medal by the USGA and R&A earlier this year for being the leading female in the WAGR. She was recently named the AJGA Rolex Player of the Year for a second consecutive year. Zhang is making her second U.S. Women's Open start after she was one of five amateurs to make the cut last year in Charleston.

In April 2020, the 75th U.S. Women's Open Championship, originally scheduled for June 4-7, 2020, was postponed to Dec. 10-13 due to evolving dynamics of the global COVID-19 pandemic.

This marks the first time that the U.S. Women's Open will be played in December. Babe Didrikson Zaharias was crowned the 1950 champion on Sept. 30. Since the USGA has conducted the U.S. Women's Open, starting in 1953, the championship has only been played in May, June and July.

For the first time in U.S. Women's Open history, the championship will be played on two courses. To account for reduced daylight given the move to December, the Jackrabbit Course at Champions Golf Club will be used in conjunction with the Cypress Creek Course, which was originally slated to host all four rounds of championship play. The Jackrabbit will co-host Rounds 1 and 2.

Champions Golf Club was founded in 1957 by multiple major champions Jackie Burke Jr. and Jimmy Demaret in their hometown of Houston, Texas. They enlisted fellow Houstonian Ralph Plummer to be the architect of the esteemed Cypress Creek Course, which opened in 1959. Cypress Creek was carved into a beautiful forest featuring more than 70,000 trees, wide fairways and enormous greens. The Jackrabbit Course, designed by George Fazio, opened for play in 1964.

The first high-profile event the club hosted was the 1967 Ryder Cup when Ben Hogan captained the United States team to a 15-point victory. It has since held the 1969 U.S. Open, 1993 U.S. Amateur, two U.S. Women's Mid-Amateur championships and five PGA Tour Championships. It also hosted a PGA Tour event (the Houston/Champions International) five times between 1966 and 1971.

The champion will receive the Mickey Wright Medal, custody of the Harton S. Semple Trophy for the ensuing year and an exemption from qualifying for the next 10 U.S. Women's Open Championships.

In 2019, the purse for the U.S. Women's Open increased to $5.5 million, the largest in women's golf, with the champion receiving $1 million, provided she is a professional.

Last year marked the sixth time since 2005 that a player's first LPGA victory came in the U.S. Women's Open. All six of those players were from the Republic of Korea, including Inbee Park in 2008.

1st LPGA Win at U.S. Women's Open (Since 2005):

Year	Champion	Country
2019	Jeongeun Lee6	Korea
2017	Sung Hyun Park	Korea
2015	In Gee Chun	Korea
2011	So Yeon Ryu	Korea
2008	Inbee Park	Korea
2005	Birdie Kim	Korea

Inbee Park is one shy of tying the record for most career rounds under par in U.S. Women's Open history.

The 2020 U.S. Women's Open will be the 31st USGA championship conducted in the state of Texas. Most recently, Champions Golf Club hosted the 2017 U.S. Women's Mid-Amateur Championship, won by Kelsey Chugg. The only other U.S. Women's Open held in Texas was in 1991 at Colonial Country Club in Fort Worth, where Meg Mallon defeated Pat Bradley by two strokes to win her first of two U.S. Women's Open titles.
